WEDNESDAY, MAY 26, 1838.

Quoted from the New York Express received yesterday, we have some interesting intelligence of the doings in Congress on Thursday last. The subject of all others the most interesting is that of the present time, that of the NATIONAL FAITH UNPROTECTED; but there is a subject which has been little noticed, and that is the survey. The proceedings will be seen in another edition, as also the Message of the President to both Houses of Congress on the State of the Treasury. This message gives a deplorable picture of the public finances. The time has at last arrived, so long predicted by the opposition, when the administration is compelled to acknowledge its bankruptcy. It appeals to the representatives of the people to do what it has; by its own follies and extravagance, rendered itself incapable of doing. To save the NATIONAL FAITH UNPROTECTED. The House are fairly turned at last. But a few months since the petitions of the people for signs of relief, as the condition of the country required, and the constitution authorized, were disdainfully rejected by the Executive, with a spirit so characterized only by self-sufficiency, official arrogance, indifference to the wants and contempt for the opinions of the people. Seeing you know as he did that the credit, industry, enterprise and prosperity of the country were rolling down hill together, instead of extending the timely hand of relief, the President gave them each and all a hearty kick.

WASHINGTON, May 10, 1838.

Thursday Night.

Both Houses of Congress, mirabile dictu, have been hard at work, and brought something to pass besides acts of words. The House of Representatives, as you will see, have laid the whole subject matter, connected with the late duel, on the table. This was a three week's work, and the most profligate consumption of time ever known in any public body. But the snarl is unraveled, the discussion closed, and the event is worthy of a day of Public Thanks giving.

NORTHEASTEN BOUNDARY.

In the Senate a variety of interesting miscellaneous matters have been up for consideration. Mr. Webster has presented the report and resolutions adopted by the Legislature of Massachusetts, upon this subject. Massachusetts, Mr. Webster said, is sensibly alive to the great question, as important to Maine and herself. The time has come to say, for speedy action on the part of both Houses of Congress. The pending state of the question between England and the United States demands action. By and by, probably before the House take up this bill, the Senate will have it under consideration. Mr. Williams of Maine, to day gave notice that he should bring in a Bill to-morrow, proposing the survey of the North Eastern Boundary, and Mr. Webster has said to day that he should follow in the discussion of the Bill. Maine is here almost in person, both by her Senators and Representatives in Congress, and is more firmly and steadily represented upon this subject by Charles S. Davies, Esq. of Portland, who arrived here this morning from Maine, with a view to expedite the action of Congress. As far advanced as the session is, and numerous as are the subjects before Congress, there are many hopes that a Bill will be passed granting the proposed survey. Massachusetts and Maine have each a number of Richmondians in the field.

MISSISSIPPI ELECTION.

There are fifty-eight counties in the State and we have received definite accounts from only fourteen. It is therefore impossible to decide with any confidence upon the result. The majority last year for Clinton was 4000. Against this great odds, the whigs, so far as returned have come in, have contended nobly. The total whig vote in the 14 counties, from which we have full returns, is SIXTY HUNDRED AND FIVE. In some other counties the vote is reported 2000 or 3000, and in 7 counties partially heard from, the gain is equally great.

NOTES.

[From the N. Y. Journal of Commerce.]

EVERY DAY FROM EUROPE.

The pocket of England, Capt. White, arrived on Black Island, opposite Newport, on Thursday, a very short passage from Liverpool. The England made her passage to St. George's Bank in 16 days. London papers to April 16th have been received, and Liverpool news of May 1st, being 9 days later, from the former place, and 13 from the latter, than before received.

The Eng. ac-brings £102,000 in gold; equal to $200,000.

Lord Durham was to leave town on the 21st, for Portofloub, where he embark for Canada. By advice from Spain, it appears that a large body of Carlists 5000 in number, commanded by the general de Negri, had advanced to within a few leagues of Madrid. They had entered the town of Alcalá, where are the mines of quicksilver, and destroyed much property. The Queen's party, on the other hand, had gained considerable success in the North.

of national rejoicing, but no appearance whatever of public enthusiasm.

SAN JUAN DE LAU, APRIL 26, 1838.

San Juan de lau was taken by the Spaniards before yesterday at three o'clock P.M. and the fort which defended it fell yesterday morning into the hands of the Christians. One night powder, over 1000 lbs., was taken by our troops before the breach could have been made practicable by our guns; the fortifications stood firm in the mountains under the protection of two battalions of the enemy that were stationed on the hills above the town, in the direction of the river. In number they could not have exceeded 250 men. The loss sustained by the Christians, in taking the fort amounted to 120 men, and five officers, killed and wounded while it is supposed that the fort have suffered little.

CONGRESSIONAL.

[Correspondence of the Journal of Commerce.]

WASHINGTON, May 9, 1838.

The funeral obsequies of the late Mr. Lawler of Alabama, were performed to day at the Capitol, after the usual form. The ceremonies of these funerals are very impressive. One solemn and picturesque scene which they present, I never noticed till to day. Upon entering the Rotunda, at 12 o'clock, I was struck with the appearance of a part of the interior, which was there awaiting the entry of the President of the U. S., the Cabinet, and the Senate, in order to proceed to the Hall of Representatives. The coffin, covered with black velvet, and richly ornamented, stood in the centre, on a bier, over which a black pall was thrown. On either side were arranged the committee of arrangements, the pall bearers, officers, &c. in white scars, and the Altoona Senators and Representatives, the clergymen, &c. in black scarfs and bands. They stood all covered and silent, and not another individual was in that edifice. The impression made by this group, upon one suddenly entering the Rotunda, is full of awe and solemnity.

A special message from the President of the United States, and a Report from the Secretary of the Treasury, in reference to the Finances of the Country and the condition of the Treasury, addressed to both Houses of Congress, was read and referred to day. They are dolorous documents, as you will see, giving a most dolorous account of the poverty of the Treasury. Department.

A voice seems to come from the White House, like that from Raum, lamenting, weeping, and great mourning. The Report and Message, will probably be with you as soon as the receipt of my letter. Believe but half of the Message or Report, for but half is true, or rather but half the truth is told. Mr. Buchanan gave a corresponding recital of the inner temple of the Treasury Department, this morning. A Bill was, under consideration, proposing an appropriation of $30,000, for the erection of an Insane Hospital, in the District of Columbia. The Bill has been, or is to be, engrossed, and this morning the Senator from Pennsylvania moved its postponement to the next session of Congress, because, as he said, the Treasury was exhausted, and could not meet the demands against it, because the Treasury was exhausted.

Congress could readily avert these results, if approving the course suggested in the last annual report on the finances. It could remove the prohibition to reissue the notes which may be or have been prematurely paid in and re-deemed, and, where they have been cancelled, permit others to be used in their stead; or it could effect the same object by allowing other notes to be emitted, instead of such as have been or shall hereafter be paid in, before the year for their redemption expires. By the reasonable adoption of either of those measures, all anticipated embarrassments during 1838 can probably be obviated. For, for that event no provision of additional means to meet the expenditures of the year will be necessary hereafter, unless before the close of the session it shall appear that new appropriations have been made, or are likely to be made. Indeed, the estimates submitted by the Department in December last, by several millions, or that the revenue received will, be materially less.

On the contrary, if nothing of the measures above proposed should meet the approbation of Congress, it is obvious that among the various substitutes which may be thought of, or which this Department has taken to suggest, to the Committee on Ways and Means, some one must be selected, that can be made efficient in its operation, at a very early day, or it will be impracticable to preserve the national faith unbroken, and to avert the injuries with which the public service is threatened.

With your respects,

LEWIS WOODBURY,
Secretary of the Treasury.

STATE OF THE TREASURY.

The following message was received from the President of the United States, by Mr. Abraham Van Buren, his private Secretary:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I submit to the consideration of Congress a statement, prepared by the Secretary of the Treasury, by which it appears that the United States, with o. & p. twenty-eight millions in deposit with the States, and over fifteen millions due from individuals and banks, are, in the situation in which these funds are placed, in immediate danger of being rendered unable to discharge, with good faith and promptitude, the various pecuniary obligations of the Government. As in 1837.

The occurrence of this result has for some time been apprehended, and efforts made to avert it. As the principle difficulty arises from a provision in the present law to require such a sum as notes amounting on paper to discharging full due, and fully, but really obviated by giving the Treasury, during the whole year, the benefit of the full amount, especially as it is, the remedy would be to get the amount reduced, or to make a serious contribution, nearly one-half from the public chest. Consequence, as Mr. Webster would say, they were soon in a sick dog's hole.
